How He Put Her Under an Obligation.

[Original.]
Didn't I never tell y' how I got Sairy? No! Well, I took a heap o' pride in it at first, but after awhile some how it didn't seem that I was as cute as I thought I was, and as the years have gone by sometimes I think I took a lot o' unnecessary trouble.

Sairy was popular with everybody. The women liked her better 'n the men, and that's sayin' a good deal for a gal. She had a way o' humoring people, never runnin' up agin' their prejudices and all that sort o' thing. She never looked sour. On the contrary, her face wore a perpetual smile. They said she was cute.

There was young men that was fine lookin' who was ambitious to get Sairy, but somehow she didn't seem to fancy none o' 'em, and so I argued that if they wasn't fine enough for her what was the use of a redheaded, freckled feller like me puttin' in a claim. We was all about alike so far as worldly goods was concerned, none o' us havin' anything to speak of. In fact, we was all at an age when we was lookin' out for good looks. That bein' the case, I hadn't no show at all, for I was the homeliest young man in the town.

But I got Sairy, all the same, and I'm a-goin' to tell you how I did it. I wasn't nobody's fool, you see, if I was homely. The way I did it was by puttin' her under an obligation. One day I said to her, "Miss Baker"—her name was Baker before I married her—"Miss Baker, why don't y' git married?"

"Mr. Tucker," she said, "there ain't no one for me to marry."

"What's the matter with these fellows that's goin' with you?" I asked.

"Oh, none o' these young men do marry me," she said. "We've growed up together. People that grow up together don't do much marryin'. They're too used to each other. The men all go off and marry girls from somewhere else. None o' 'em here do look at me."

Now, I knowed better than that. There was two on 'em dyin' for her. But I wasn't no sich fool as to tell her. If I did, where'd I come in? So I didn't say nothin' but that I thought she'd ought to git married; that she'd be happier married, and it would be better for her to have some one to lean on when her father passed out. Then she said maybe I could find her a husband. This staggered me a little, considerin' I wanted her myself, but I said I'd try. Then she told me she'd like me to attend to the matter at once, and she was gittin' on, and if I succeeded she'd consider me the dearest friend she ever had in her life.

I saw the advantage o' puttin' her under an obligation. But what good would it do me to put her under that kind of an obligation? It would be like tryin' to lift myself up in a basket.

DISSOLUTION IS PASSED

One Law to Be Disregarded—Cabinet to Pay No Attention to the Measure Abolishing the Hated Drumhead Courts-Martial.

Nevertheless I did it, and I've always considered it a case of real selfishness. I found a widower about forty-five years old who wanted some one to take care of his seven motherless children. I told him about Sairy—how she'd like to get married and what a good stepmother she'd make. After awhile I succeeded in awakenin' an interest in his breast, and it ended in my taking him to see Sairy. She was as polite to him as a basket o' chips, seemin' to take to him from the start. She cast a grateful glance at me, and I knowed she appreciated what I'd done for her.

I couldn't quite feel that I was actin' honest by her, for, as I was sayin', I knowed at least two fellers far better matches than the widower that wanted her, and I'd order gone to one on 'em and told him o' the chance. But somehow I couldn't. I've never been able to tell just why I put up with the widower instead. I leave it to them fellers in colleges who study psychology and that sort o' thing.

Well, the widower called regular once a month on Sairy. He was watchin' her to see if she'd make a good wife for himself and a good mother to his children. Them widowers, havin' had a lot o' experience, know just what's required. From observation and what people said he soon learned that Sairy was one of a thousand and just the one he wanted.

One evening I went to see Sairy to find out how she was gettin' along with the widower. She told me she had a letter from him that day proposin' marriage. He said owin' to his family it must be a sort o' business affair. Sairy was the gratefullest girl you ever saw in your life. She took hold o' my boy hand with freckles spottin' the back—hers was small and white and soft—and looked up into my eyes with such an expression as I never see there before, and she said, said she:

"This is the beautifullest thing you've done for me I ever heard of. You've put me under an everlasting obligation. Here was I with no one to marry me, and you come along and jist lift me out o' the slough o' despond. I'm so grateful that I want to do somethin' real nice to show you how grateful I am. Now, I want you to tell me somethin' you want me to do most of anything. Speak right out and don't be afraid, no matter how unreasonable it seems."

"There's nothin' you can do for me," I said kind o' melancholy-like.

"Nothin' I can do for you? Isn't there somethin' you want me to do for you?"

"Yes, there's somethin' I'd like you to do for me a heap, but that's out o' the question."

"Tell me what it is," she said, still holdin' on to my hand and givin' it a soft squeeze.

"Well, I'd rather have you marry me than the widower."

She jist sprung into my arms. After all, I'm rather proud o' the way I managed it.

QUINCY MAY MEET JEROME.

It Is Thought He Can Help to Reach Man "Higher Up," From Den-net's Talk.

New York, May 2.—It is expected that Josiah Quincy, ex-mayor of Boston, will have a talk at the district attorney's office about the bond-robbery of the trust company of America by William O. Douglas.

Mr. Quincy, who was consulted by Oliver M. Dennett with reference to the robbery before Douglas' arrest, but declined to act as counsel in the matter, arrived here Tuesday afternoon, and it is thought that he may be able to lend some assistance in reaching the much sought man "higher up."

Oakleigh Thorne, president of the trust company of America, said:

"While we are morally convinced that there was a third person in the case, the identity of this person being well known to us from the beginning, we have not on any of evidence directly connecting him with it, and there is grave doubt in my mind if we shall ever be able to cause his arrest."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"A little laughter now and then is relieved by the best of men. With this end in view, comedy with music, Bobby and Savin DeRue are producing an original act known as the 'Musical Minstrels,' in which both very effectively show themselves to be artists in their line. Both are expert musicians and the comedy introduced by Bobby is of the funniest nature. They play a large number of different instruments, and the act always keeps up the excitement and interest of the audience. This act is only one of the features with DeRue Bros' Minstrels, which appear at the opera house on next Tuesday evening.

Will Have Only 25 Cents a Week Pocket Money.

London, May 2.—Prince Edward of Wales, eldest son of the Prince of Wales, yesterday joined the Royal Naval college at Osborne, Isle of Wight, as a cadet. He will be treated exactly the same as the four hundred other cadets, will occupy a bunk in the college dormitory, and will be restricted to the twenty-five cents weekly pocket money allowed by the regulations.

Prince Edward was born June 23, 1894.

BOSTON AGAIN WINS GAME

Defeated New York Highlanders Yesterday, 4 to 3

HARD HITTING BY BOTH

Captain-Manager J. J. Uhl's Triple in the Seventh Inning Did the Business—Pruett Was in the Box for Boston and Did Fairly Well.

Boston, May 2.—Both the Pilgrims and the Highlanders had their eyes on the ball yesterday afternoon, but the hits of the Pilgrims came at more opportune times and they won by the score of 4 to 3. The game was rather ragged in fielding. Pruett was in the box for the home team and Brackett for New York.

Boston scored its first run in the first inning on Sullivan's single, two outs and Collins' single. New York went them one better in the next inning on Kleinow's Texas leaguer, Brackett's single and Hoffman's single, followed by a sacrifice by Keeler and Ellerfeldt's out, the second score coming in on the latter play. Collins took care of Chase's grounder.

The home team stored the game away in the seventh. With two down Pruett hit for two bases, Sullivan walked and Brackett fumbled Parent's grounder. Then Bob England, who had just been appointed manager, as well as captain, of the team to succeed George Huff, slammed the ball for three bases and brought in three runs. Collins fouled out.

A double by Conroy, an error by Collins and an out gave the visitors their third and last run in the ninth inning.

IN EVERY HOME.

The following simple prescription, writes a noted authority, should be made known to every family. While it is a simple home-made mixture, it forms a powerful tonic and vitalizing agent to the kidneys, forcing them to filter and eliminate from the blood all acids and waste, restoring the full count, or 95 per cent, of red corpuscles.

Here it is, and now is the time to take it: fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup sarsaparilla, three ounces. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. These harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from any good pharmacy, and anyone can mix them at home by shaking well in a bottle.

Noted medical authorities now recognize this as a blood cleanser and system tonic par excellence, because of its gentle though almost certain action in the treatment of rheumatism, skin and facial eruptions, and other miserable blood afflictions for which the kidneys are responsible. At this time of year the blood becomes sour and filled with poisons and acids, which the skin pores failed to eliminate during the cold weather, adding this additional work to the kidneys, which, overtaxed, become inactive and sluggish and require just such an invigorant or regulator.

Mix this and try it, and note the remarkable improvement in your health.

semi-professional short stops in the state has signed a contract with the Burlington, Vt., team of the New Hampshire state league, and left yesterday for that city. He was with the Pawtucket team of the Inter-state league last season and played a brilliant game at short stop. Gallagher got his start in the amateur league, playing fast ball for the Dewey boys the year they lagged second place. He was one of the fastest players on the Iroquois team, which defeated the Dewey boys the year they won the pennant. He is a good stickler, and hits around the 300 mark.

TAPT BOOMERS GIVE UP FIGHT FOR PRIMARIES

Will Be No Test of Foraker's Strength in Ohio.

Washington, May 2.—The Taft forces have become much discouraged about holding a primary in Ohio. Indications are that the primary movement will be abandoned, and that there will be no test of strength between Taft and Foraker before the selection of delegates to the 1908 convention.

Secretary Taft was at his office again yesterday, having returned from his Ohio trip. He was silent on politics. He has no engagements to go to Ohio to speak, but later may make a few dignified speeches discussing important public questions.

The White House is keeping in close touch with the progress of the Taft boom. There is reason to believe that some discouragement is felt there at the country's failure to seize it eagerly.

MAY DAY STIRS LABOR ABROAD

Bloodshed in Lodz and Warsaw in Grip of Tie-up

MANY ARRESTED IN PARIS

Mobs Dispersed in Rome—Peaceful Celebrations in Germany—Few Strikes Recorded in the United States.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, May 2.—The general strike ordered for May day here resulted in practically a complete tie-up of business and traffic. No meat or bread were available, no street cars or cabs appeared on the streets, no papers were printed, and the stores were closed.

The city is practically a military camp.

Lodz, Russian Poland, May 2.—Many sanguinary fights in the streets here marked the May day cessation of work in the factories, stores, and news papers offices. The Nationalists, who opposed the strike, and the Socialists, who declared it, were in conflict throughout the forenoon. Several men were killed or wounded, and many arrests were made. The street cars were kept running under the military escort.

Yekaterinoslav, Russia, May 2.—The great Briansk foundries and rolling mills constituting the largest mechanical plant in Russia, have been closed, owing to the continued political and industrial agitation.

Roman Mob Breaks Cordon.

Rome, May 2.—The police forbade a public meeting here yesterday, organized by the Socialists to commemorate May day and at which Maxim Gorky had promised to speak. All the streets leading to the Botanical gardens, near the Coliseum, where the meeting was to be held, were occupied by troops; but the thousands of workmen, who had gathered in the vicinity, broke through the cordons, entered the gardens and held a meeting. Several Socialist deputies delivered fiery speeches, but Gorky did not appear. One report declared that his suffering from constipation prevented him making the journey from Capri to Rome, but another said he had been notified that he would be expelled from Italy if he attempted to cause any disorder.

After the meeting, the workmen attempted to parade the principal streets, but were prevented by troops of cavalry who charged and dispersed them.

COREY STILL HEADS STEEL TRUST

Re-elected President at Annual Meeting—No Change in Other Offices.

New York, May 2.—William E. Corey was re-elected president of the United States Steel Corporation at the annual meeting of the board of directors in this city yesterday. All the other officers whose terms expire were re-elected.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate woman and child. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much larger amount is used than for any other medicine, and the medicinal principles used in it are of the highest quality. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and astringent, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, grating feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its advanced stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal Passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds nor best if be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the chronic chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be used.

RETURNED THE MONEY.

Thief Probably Learned There Was an Officer After Him.

Rutland, May 2.—While the family of A. S. Anderson were moving their household goods from Lincoln avenue to the Lawrence house on Washington street yesterday about $50 in bills, which Mrs. Anderson had left in a pay envelope between the springs and mattress of her bed at the Lincoln avenue house, was stolen by one of the truckmen, the family think, the man having gone into the room after the furniture sooner than she expected they would. The money was later recovered, no arrest being made.

When Mrs. Anderson missed the money she immediately telephoned to her daughter, who was at the Lawrence house where the truckman had gone with a load of goods. A policeman went to the house in response to a summons and the money, with a dollar or two missing, was found in a bureau drawer, the bills being in a crumpled wad. Mrs. Anderson left them folded smoothly in the envelope.

A plumber claimed that he had noticed one of the truckmen go into the bathroom, remaining there a long time. A pay envelope was found in the bathroom. This led to the search which resulted in the discovery of the money.

The supposition is that the guilty person got wind of the fact that an officer was summoned and immediately hid the bills. The family decided not to cause any arrest in view of the recovery of the money.
